There are well established gardens and trees making for a lovely country setting. Plenty of room for market gardens and there is a chook pen.

Close to Rous Public School and only several minutes drive into the friendly village of Alstonville, this is the perfect property for young families wanting to give their children a life in the country or for those buyers looking to have some space to spread out.

There is also room on this land to build a new dwelling for those that can't find that perfect flat piece of land and want to build a new home, this one is worth looking at. By retaining the original renovated cottage you can accommodate other family members or engage in a rental return.
